ili OPENING OF HARVARD HOUSE

Ambaisador Reid to Accept Historia Pridice For A with

The first public function which will he undertaken by Whitelaw Reid on his return to England will be the onening of the Hausard Rooms in Shalford-on-Ayon. The dure of the function has been fixed by the ambassador himself for Oct. 6, so that the ceremony may be coincident with the installation of Dr. Lowell as the new in modern house. Inquire at 38 president of Harvard university. The house is perhaps the most beautiful sixteenth century building existing-in Stratford-on-Ayon. Miss Corelli has removed all modernities and allowed the house to show itself as it is and-as it was in the days of-John Harvard. No new material has been put into the building, but the old timbers have been fully disclosed and carefully preserved. It is a far more perfect_specimen of a sixteenth centur, abode than Shakespeare's birth-

After the opening ceremony by Mr. Reid the house will be open to the public and will be available to traveling Americans for use as a resting place in Stratford. On the day of the opening Miss Corelli will entertain the ambassador and some hundred friends at luncheon at her residence. Mason thousands of School Children Will Have Chance to Give Cents.

Forty-five thousand school children nity to subscribe to the John Albert Johnson memorial fund In the sixtyone schools of Minneapolis the 1.100 teachers will be directed to inform the children that no contribution is asked. but that if any child desires to participate in honoring a man who was not only a great man, but a friend of all the children a few_cents_or_more may be subscribed. The plan to erect a memorial to John Albert Johnson, the late governor of Minnesota, that should be a remembrance to the people, the money for which should come-from the peo-ple, has extended rapidly over the state. The announcement that the contributions would be timited to $1 met instant approval everywhere,

James J. Hill and Louis-. W. Hill bave indorsed the plan, and the rail-road officials of Minneapolis and St. Paul favor it.

The Lemon Cucumber. After six years of experimenting and with knowledge gained at the agricultural college of the Wisconsin State university G. D. Brown, a young farmer of Spokane Bridge, Wash., has succeeded in growing what he proudly terms the 'lemon cucumber.' almost spherical in shape, and which he guarantees free from the qualifica of ducing ill effects upon the stomach. About an acre of the new product has brought Mr Brown about $300 this season. The entire supply is being shipped to formum, wince-they are being used by fancy caterers.

Drinks Served in Ice Cups. Drinks served in tumblers made of ice are the invention of a Dutchman named Hulzer. Water is introduced into a mol and is then frozen. As soon as, the contents of the tumbler bare been drunk it can be thrown; away, and thus ideal hygicule conditions are obtained. The ice tumblers cost only twentieth of a penny to
